The Mamaw Kimiciminan Indigenous Food Sovereignty Gathering is a three-day, land-based, knowledge-sharing event. This gathering is a blend of a conference and a cultural camp.

Centered on mamaw kimiciminan ("our foods" in Anishiniimowin) and First Nations communities in Northern Ontario, the gathering will:

- Bring together Elders, youth, knowledge carriers, food champions, and community leaders;
- Celebrate the rich food knowledge we carry;
- Strengthen Indigenous food systems across the region;
- Share teachings, build skills, and reinforce Indigenous knowledge systems;
- Advance sustainable, culturally grounded food systems; and
- Address food insecurity and climate impacts.
